KASEY KAHNE

Kasey Kahne established himself among the elite of the NASCAR NEXTEL Cup Series in 2006 in only his third season of competition in NASCAR's premier series. The 28-year-old driver from Enumclaw, Wash., posted a series-high six wins in the No. 9 Dodge Dealers/AAW Dodge Charger and earned a berth in the Chase for the Nextel Cup.

Kahne finished eighth in the final point standings. In addition to the six wins, he had 12 top-five and 19 top-10 finishes and started from the Bud Pole six times during the season, more than any other driver that season.

Part of the success can be attributed to a change team owner Ray Evernham made at the end of the 2005 season when he shuffled personnel within the organization. Kahne was teamed with Kenny Francis (team director), Mike Shiplett (car director) and Keith Rodden (engineer).
