Hello, Amway Japan. I'm John Parker, Amway's chief sales officer, and I'm incredibly proud to recognize the achievements of MURAYAMA-SAN and KATSURA-SAN and their triple diamond status. We celebrate your success, Kazuko Chikako and Saori – not just in Japan but across our entire organization – and especially here, in Ada, Michigan, where the Amway dream began.

While many companies choose to honor team members after they reach service milestones – a reflection of time – we place no such restrictions on merit, allowing success to be limitless, bounded only by personal effort, commitment and passion.

It's in that light that your achievements are so notable. Of course, we recognize that your success is also a reflection of the success of those whom you inspire and motivate – all of the group members in the 15 legs who are part of the 2112 organization.

People tend to speak casually about dedication and leadership, but at Amway, they're easily measured by simply looking at those around you – and seeing the impact you've made on their lives. (pause)

You two are indeed distinguished leaders of Amway Japan, a critical growth area in our global network. But recognize that your journey does not end here. Triple Diamond is both an accomplishment and a responsibility. We look to both of you to continue to dream big and work hard. To lead and inspire. To motivate and excite. To be a shining light ... in Japan ... in Ada, Michigan, here in the United States ... and everywhere in between.

Congratulations and enjoy your much-deserved celebration.
